Danger is coming!
From the far reaches of the universe, Ghidorah has spread his golden wings. Faster than the speed of light, the three-headed monster flies through the vast midnight darkness of outer space.
Ghidorah has been sent by evil aliens from the Hunter D Nebula for only one purpose—to destroy all life on planet Earth!

In a ball of golden fire, Ghidorah splashes into the Mediterranean Sea. The monster wades toward the beaches of France, sinking small fishing boats and huge cruise ships. He reaches land and cuts a path of destruction across the countryside.

Modern weapons are useless against this creature. Tank blasts and artillery shells bounce off Ghidorah's golden scales.

Soon Paris itself is in ruins.

The world is stunned as Ghidorah destroys all of Europe.

At United Nations headquarters in New York City, diplomats and scientists argue over ways to stop the creature's rampage. How can the people of Earth fight this powerful space monster?

The Japanese ambassador rises and speaks. "Ghidorah attacked Japan many years ago," he tells the assembly. "The monster caused great destruction. Our weapons could do nothing to stop it. Only one force on Earth was able to defeat Ghidorah..."

Meanwhile, on a remote island in the Pacific Ocean, Mothra takes to the sky. As she circles above the clouds, Mothra sends out a special call.

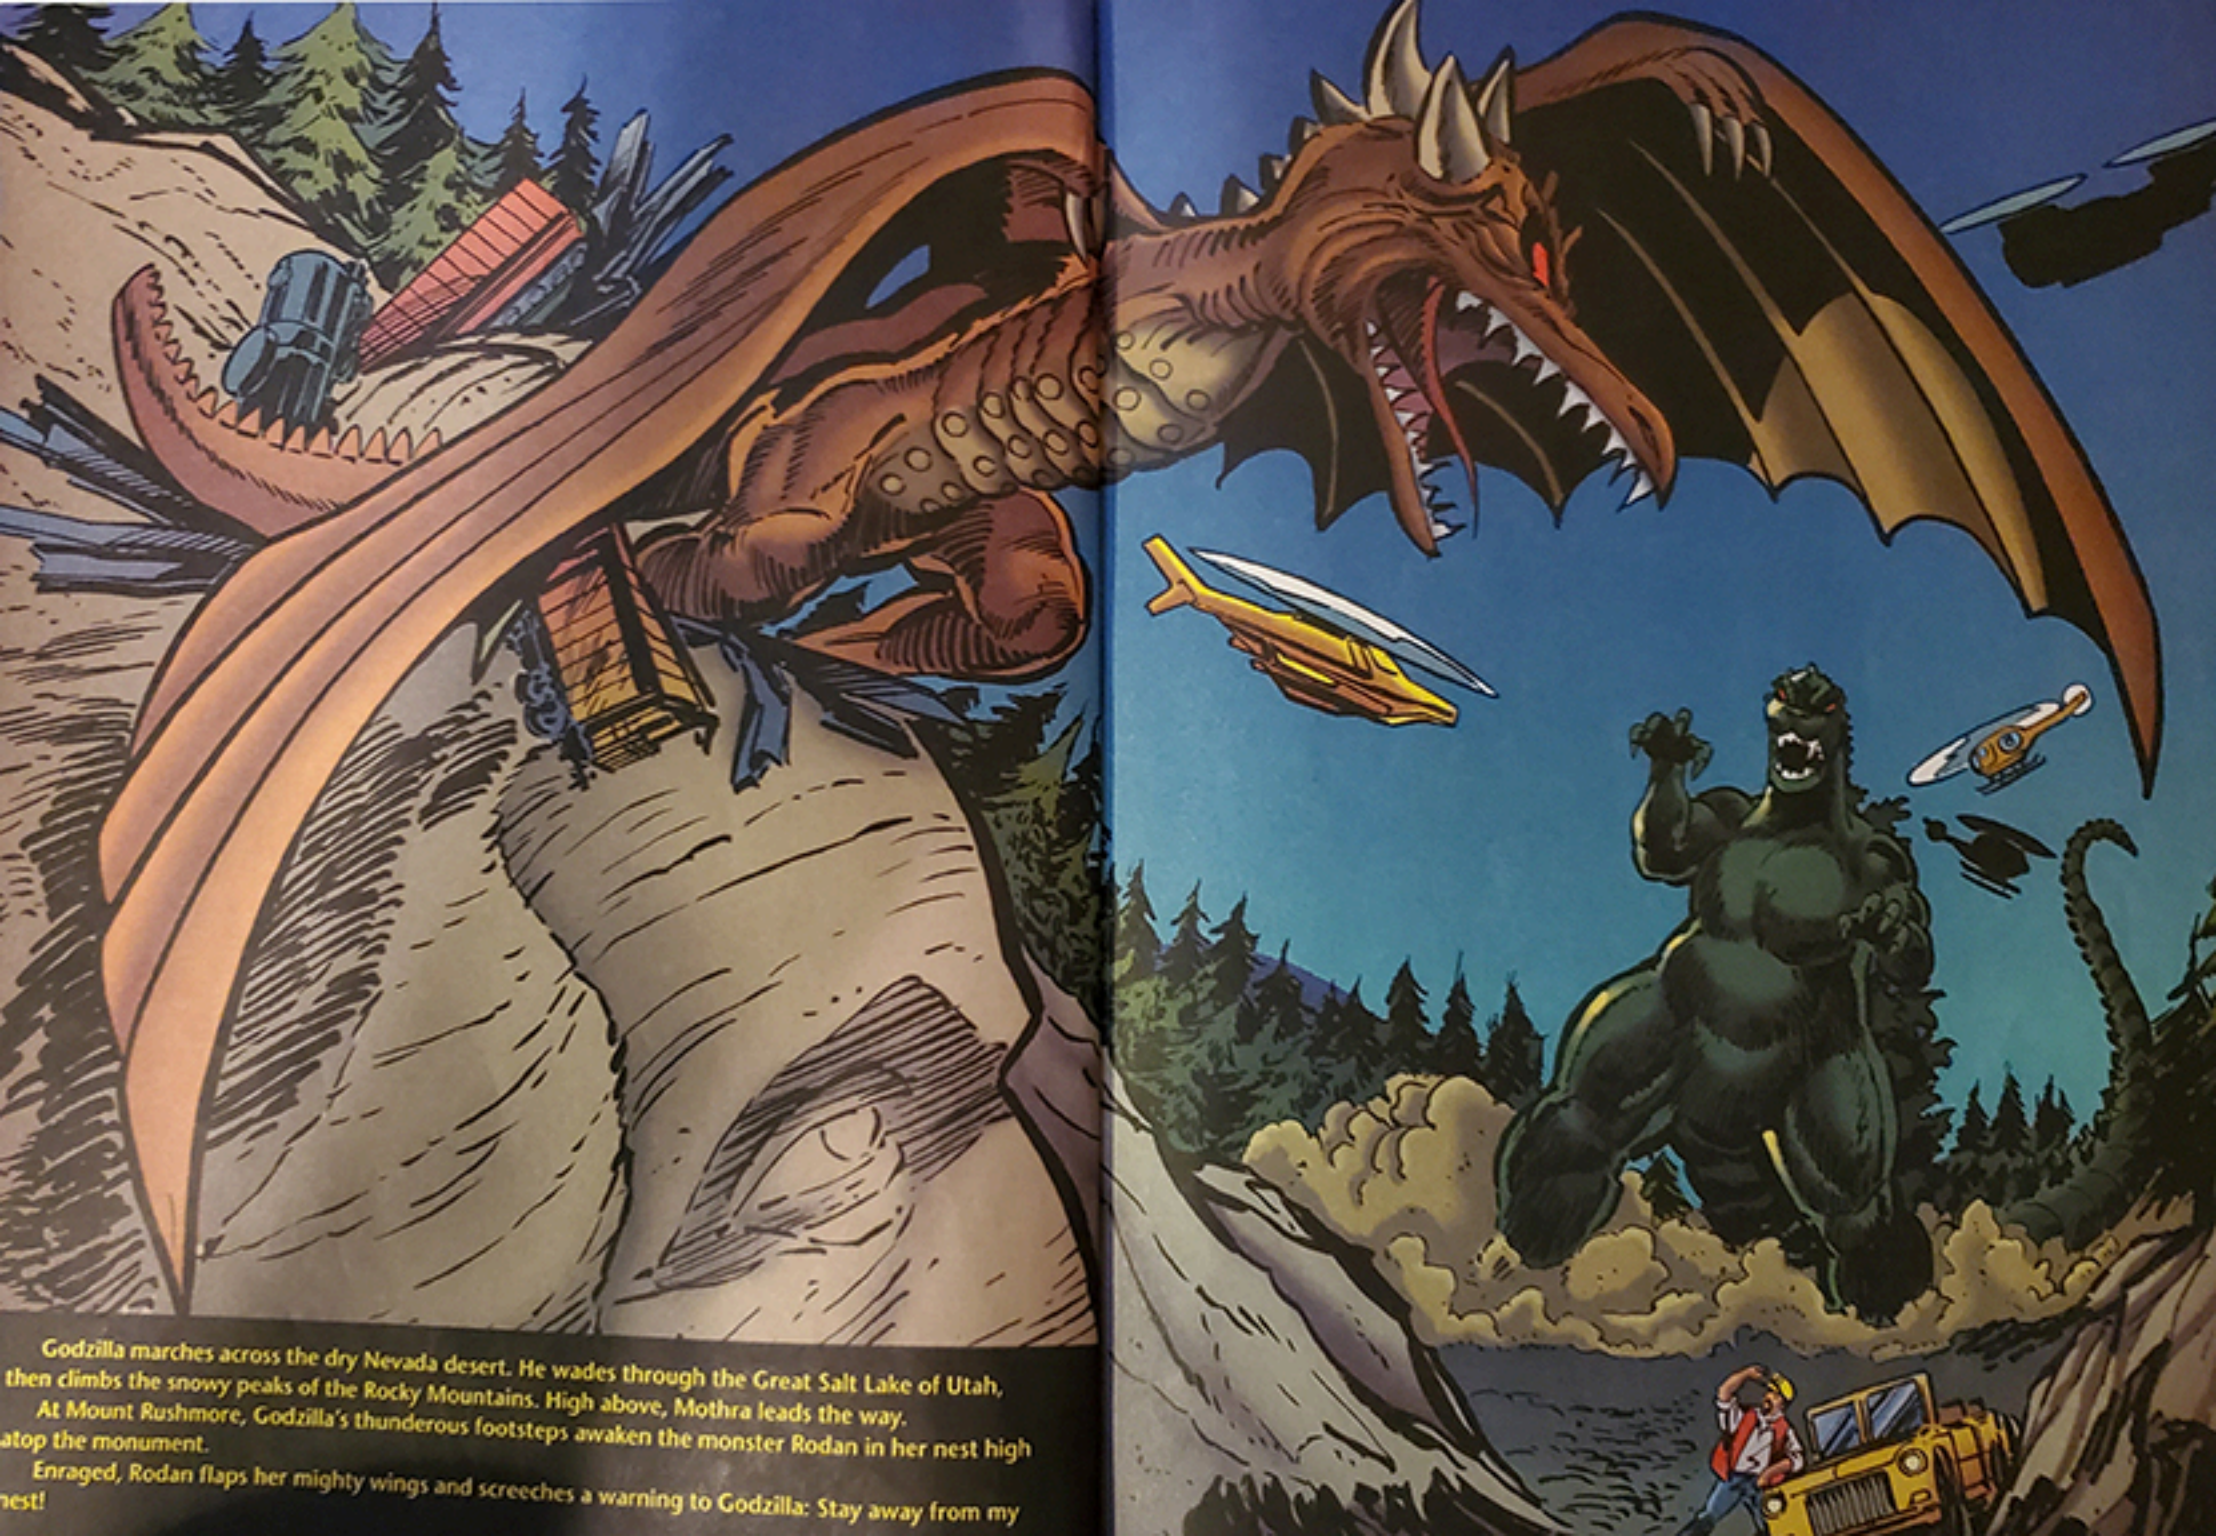
Below her, the ocean starts to churn and bubble. A jagged bolt of light flashes beneath the waves. Something is emerging from the ocean's depths...

Godzilla!

With a mighty roar, the radioactive mutant dinosaur answers Mothra's telepathic plea. Both creatures head toward the faraway coast of the United States.

When Godzilla enters San Francisco Bay, people flee in fear. The giant dinosaur passes under the Golden Gate Bridge and lumbers through the center of the city.

Mothra chirps loudly, urging Godzilla to keep moving.



Godzilla marches across the dry Nevada desert. He wades through the Great Salt Lake of Utah, then climbs the snowy peaks of the Rocky Mountains. High above, Mothra leads the way.

At Mount Rushmore, Godzilla's thunderous footsteps awaken the monster Rodan in her nest high atop the monument.

Enraged, Rodan flaps her mighty wings and screeches a warning to Godzilla: Stay away from my nest!

In Washington, D.C., the president calls an emergency meeting of his advisers. From the Pentagon battle center, they watch Godzilla tramping across America.

"We don't know why Godzilla is here, but the creature is actually doing little damage," a general tells the president. "It's Ghidorah that's the real threat—and now it's crossing the Atlantic Ocean and heading for America!"

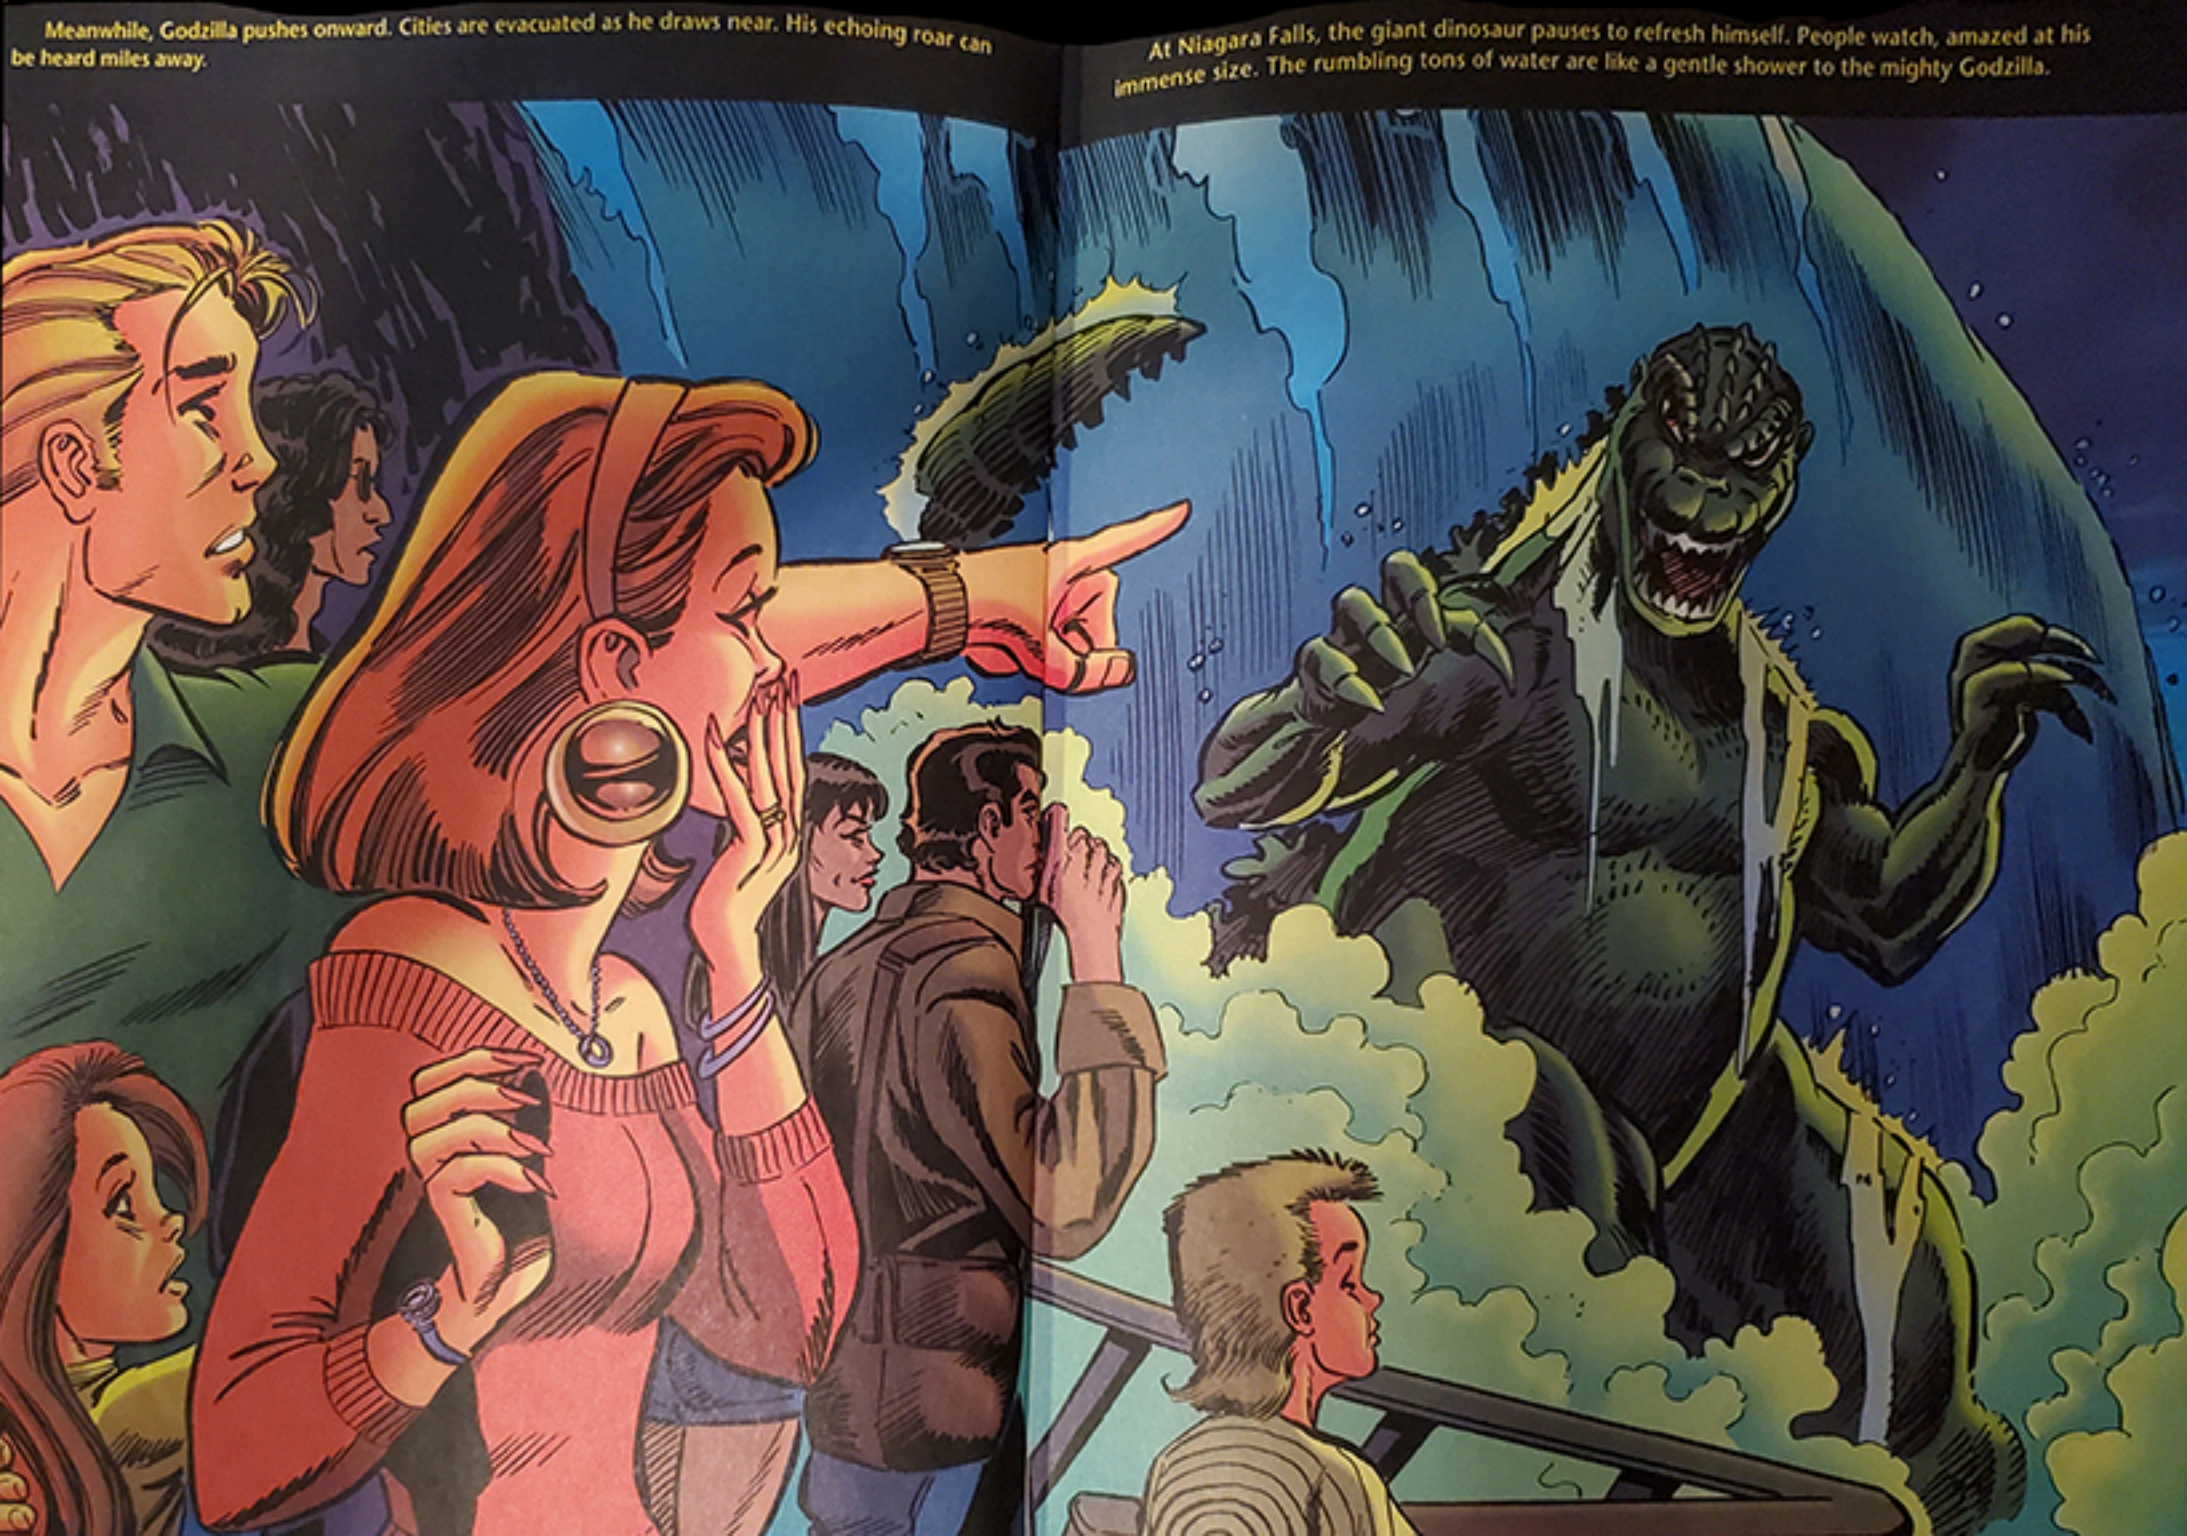
"What shall we do?" asks the president.

"Send in the Navy," declares an admiral. "Our ships will stop Ghidorah!"

U.S. Navy warships race to the middle of the Atlantic Ocean. Ghidorah flies into their line of fire. A terrible battle erupts!

The destroyers launch Tomahawk cruise missiles, but they cannot penetrate Ghidorah's tough golden scales. F-14 Tomcat jet fighters take off from an aircraft carrier. But even their air-to-air missiles are no match for this monster from space.

Ghidorah's thrashing wings smash the fleet of ships. His deadly electric bolts fry the jet fighters!



Meanwhile, Godzilla pushes onward. Cities are evacuated as he draws near. His echoing roar can be heard miles away.
At Niagara Falls, the giant dinosaur pauses to refresh himself. People watch, amazed at his immense size. The rumbling tons of water are like a gentle shower to the mighty Godzilla.

By now, Ghidorah has arrived on America's shores!
The space monster's massive wings demolish factories and buildings. Ships in New York City's harbor are tossed around like toys in a bathtub.

Thousands watch as Ghidorah nearly topples the Statue of Liberty. Tanks line the shore to defend the island of Manhattan.
But something else is waiting for Ghidorah...

It's Godzilla!

The giant dinosaur bellows his challenge to the space monster.

Ghidorah showers Godzilla with terrible bolts of energy. Godzilla blasts back with his deadly radioactive breath. His dorsal spikes crackle and glow with blue fire.

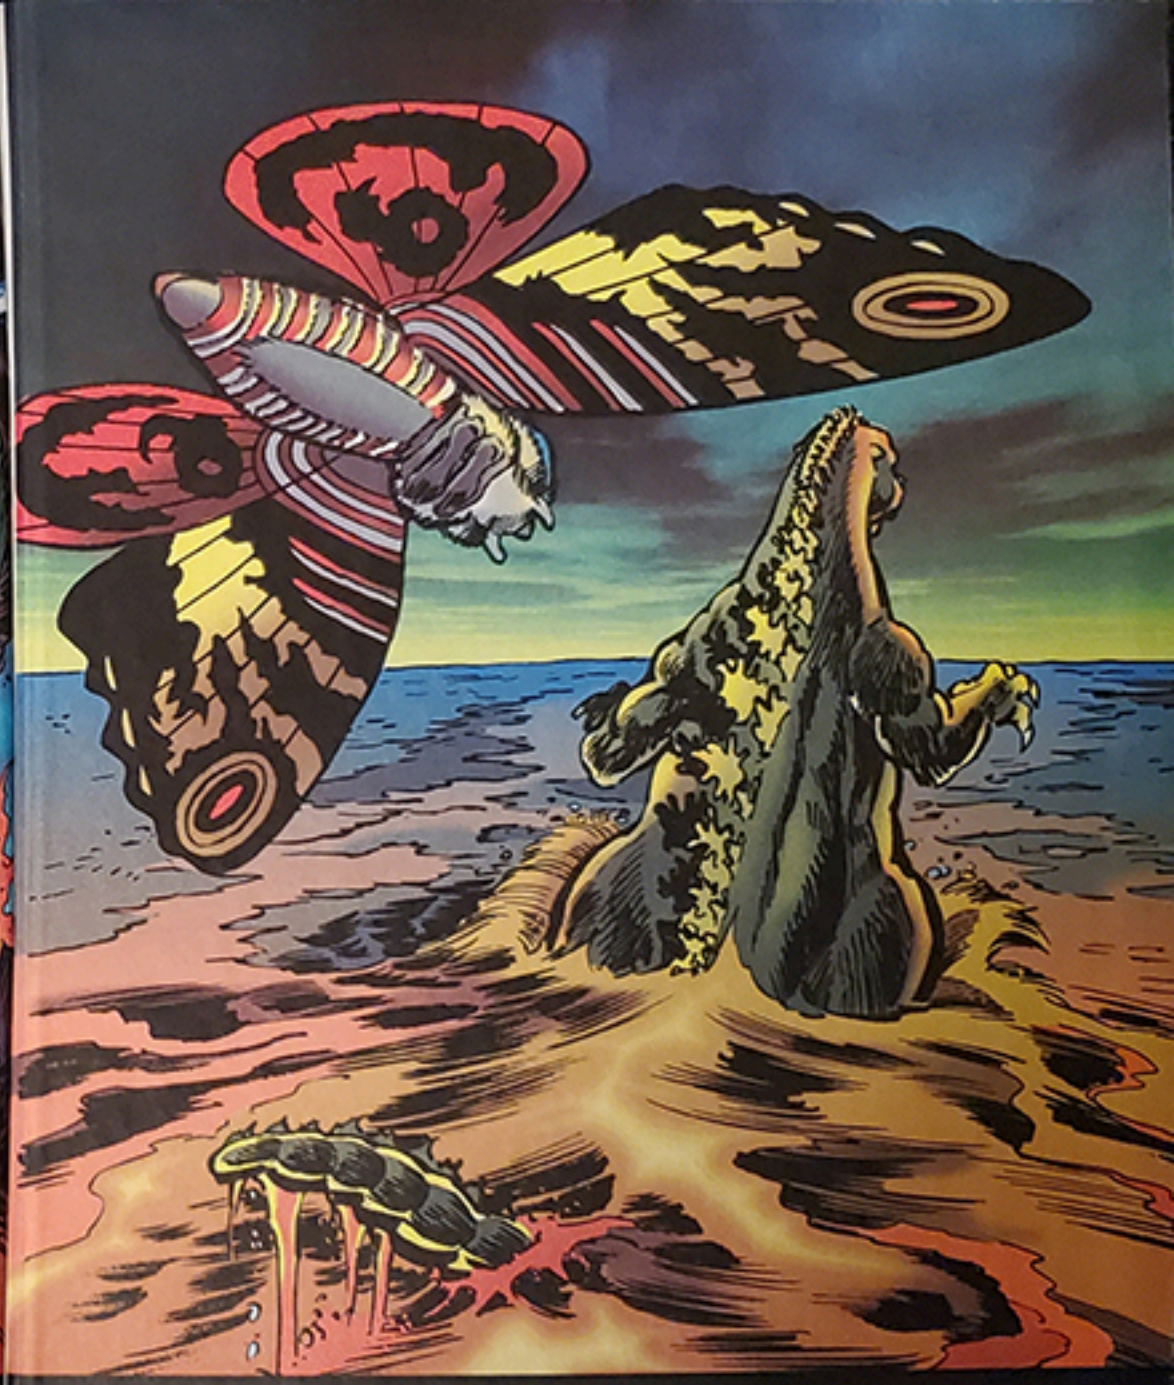
The monsters grapple in the concrete canyons of Manhattan. Glass shatters. Steel melts. Skyscrapers fall. Then Ghidorah traps Godzilla and chokes him with his three long necks. Godzilla is helpless!

But now Mothra is on the attack!
She fires her ultrasonic wave beam at the space monster. Stunned, Ghidorah releases Godzilla. Free of the creature's choking grip, an angry Godzilla turns to fight!

Using his long tail, Godzilla batters Ghidorah as Mothra's giant wings push a skyscraper down on the space monster.

Ghidorah knows he is outmatched and defeated. The three-headed monster spreads his wings and takes to the air. The people of Earth cheer as Ghidorah flees back into space.

Godzilla and Mothra have saved America!



The battle is won, and Mothra heads back to her island home somewhere in the Pacific Ocean. Godzilla wades into New York Harbor and returns to the sea.

As America begins to repair the massive damage, the nation wonders: Will Godzilla and Mothra ever return?
